

Glover Alston Intercultural Center

The Glover Alston Intercultural Center (IC) seeks to foster intercultural awareness, inclusiveness and respect for all in the Whitman community. The IC provides educational and experiential opportunities related to diversity and works directly with a number of student organizations to provide affirming programming to enhance the campus climate for all. The IC coordinates a number of equity programs (food pantry, clothing closet, textbook lending library) and works to support students in navigating potential structural barriers to success through individualized guidance and resources. IC programming is created with and for students and the Glover Alston Intercultural Center is a space where all gather to build connections and learn from each other.
